Bn Authority.

COLLECTOR-GENERAL'S OFFICE, ) Feb. 4, 1860.

His Excellency, D. L. GREGG, Minister of Finance: Sin :- On the 28th ult. the whaleship Hibernia arrived at this port, leaking, and has since discharged at the Custom-House wharf, to enable the surveyors to hold a survey, the result of which was that she has been condemned, and is to be sold at auction. The custom has been to allow the Auctioneer to sell, and afterwards enter all articles sold, paying duties on the gross sales.

Relying on an immemorial custom, (being as old as the constitution and organization of this Government) and the Auctioneer's bond on file in the Interior Office, to which I would refer your Excelleney, I allowed the ship Morea to be sold in the usual way, and have since, in consequence of the decision of the Supreme Court, paid the duty myself, Mr. Colburn having refused to fulfill what the Court terms his " contract."

It is no praise of Mr. Everett, who is to sell the Hibernia, to say that he has always been prompt and faithful in passing his entries, and paying the duties in such cases, and that his verbal "contract" would be sufficient guarantee for the future, but as the rule must be made for all, I beg to ask if the provisions of Sec. 554 shall be enforced?

If so, a charge for that service should, perhaps, be prescribed. (See last clause of Sec. 691.) Or would it be competent for me to take a bond from the Auctioneer, conditioned that the entry shall be made, and duty paid on amount of auction sales, before delivery of the articles sold?

Regretting the necessity of any change of a custom which has proved so convenient to all, and so favorable to the revenue,

I have the honor to remain your ob't servant. (Signed) W. GOODALE.

DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, ? Feb. 6, 1860.

SIR :- I acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 4th inst., and in reply, have in the first place, to express my great regret that circumstances have rendered it necessary for you to recommend a change of the old usages in regard to the payment of daties on condemned vessels or cargoes sold by Anctioneers

My suggestion to you is, that a bond be hereafter required from the Auctioneers employed to sell such vessels and cargoes, conditioned that an entry shall be made by them, and duty be paid, on the amount of sales, before the delivery of the articles

If this is not legally sufficient, there is no alternative but to exact a rigid enforcement of Section 554 of the Civil Code. It might be well for you to take the advice of the District Attorney on the subject. Very respectfully yours, D. L. GREGG. W. GOODALE, Esq., Collector General, &c., &c.
